THREE CASES FROM
HOPKINS COUNTYTo be Tried in Court of Appeals
Which Meets in Frankfort
Monday.

FERGUSON SEEKS REVERSAL

At the January term of the Court of Appeals, which meets in Frankfort Monday, January 2. There will be three cases appealed from the circuit court of this county for trial. The case of R. L. Ferguson, against the Commonwealth, appealing a judgment of $50.00 and a ten days' jail sentence, assessed against him at the last term of the circuit court, on the charge of having liquor in his possession for the purpose of sale.

Another is that of the L. & N. railroad against John G. B. Hall. In the special August term of the circuit court, condemnation proceedings awarded Mr. Hall $2,000 for his land. The railroad company appealed the case.

One case that will attract unusual amount of interest in Madisonville is that of the Nortonville Coal & Coke Co., against Milan Sisk. Sisk filed petition at the May term of court against the coal company, asking for $16,131.86 as damages. He claimed that he was gravely injured at the mines, owing to the carelessness of the coal company, breaking five ribs, dislocating his shoulder and a knee and causing serious internal injury.

An agreement between the coal company and the miner, a few days after the accident, was perfected, whereby the miner was to receive $2 a day until he was able to resume his former position in the mines. This, the petition claimed, the company did for a while, and then refused to make any payment whatsoever. In the May term of court the plaintiff was awarded $6,000 and the coal company took an appeal.

There are four cases in the family of Rev. P. A. Thomas, who lives west of Crofton. Mr. Thomas, his wife, a son and a daughter all have the disease. The cases are fully developed, but not considered dangerous. The son is improving. Dr. S. H. Williams has been detailed to vaccinate all exposed persons and maintain a strict quarantine. Dr. Lackey has given emphatic instructions to leave nothing undone to stamp out the disease before it becomes epidemic.

Wednesday about noon Dr. Lackey was notified by the Hopkins county Health Officer that Marion Duke, postmaster at Red Hill, in this county, was developing a case of smallpox. Dr. Lackey left at once for Red Hill, which is 20 or more miles from this city, to investigate the report.

Woman's Book Club Entertains Other
Literary Club of This City.

"O door flung wide, O fall flood tide
Of light and kindness meeting
Unto our friends this day out send
A joyous Christmas greeting."

The above lines seem fitting over for Wednesday afternoon when the Woman's Book Club rendered a reception at the home of their President Mrs. J. F. Dempsey to their Ex members.

The Thursday afternoon club the Chautauqua and the Blue Stocking Clubs. Mrs. J. B. Row, Miss Emeline Browning and Mrs. W. C. Morton welcomed the guests into the reception hall, which was banked with holly and rich with the perfumes of white Narcissus. In the rear of the hall the Orchestra discorded sweet music behind a screen of Southern-milax, which looked as if it had taken root and clambered riotously over the frame work, here and there being electric globes in various colors and shape looked like some rare blossoms that had come from a rarer clime.

The Drawing room was hung in festoons around the walls and banked in the corner and on the mantel. The lights fell through soft rose shades and American beauty roses in tall vases lent an air of dignity in keeping with the handsome stately President Mrs. Dempsey who stood at the head of the receiving party. In line with her were: Mrs. Fred Reinecke pres. of the Thursday afternoon, Mrs. C. H. Murphey Vice Pres. of the U. B. C., Mrs. J. S. Pritchett pres. Chautauqua, Mrs. J. L. Gordon Sect. U. B. C. and Miss Eileen Davis pres. of the Blue Stockings.

In the Library the holly was in profusion and the bright red berries and Christmas bells gave each guest a bit of that spirit so prevailing at Yule-tide season. Mesdames W. J. Cox, Ruby Lafoon and George Atkinson made good cheer for all by their words of welcome. Mrs. George Parker graciously ushered the guests into the dining-room, which was abower of loveliness over the rich mahogany table hung an immense canopy of Southern smilax and red ribbon almost covering the ceiling, this same vine was draped about the walls banked on the side board buffet, china closet and mantel. Candles with red shades were placed about in the green, the table had for its center-piece a runner of Olney lace and over this the flat decoration was of roses scattered about. Tall silver candle-sticks with red shades which lent an additional charm to Mesdames Jno. Grayot, Blount Jones and W. J. Dulin who poured tea and coffee and presided in this room. Dainty cakes in silver baskets, mints and almonds in filagree dishes were placed on the table and with a bordered ice cream slices were served.

mother. Mrs. F. B. Jennings, was a most beautiful and impressive ceremony.

In the bay-window in the dining room was constructed an impromptu altar, the backgrounds being filled in with Sago Palms, bay trees and Christmas greens. Over this was festooned garlands of Southern Smilax caught at the side with holly wreaths tied with loose bows of scarlet Tulle.

A large bouquet of scarlet roses were on the high colonial mantle shelf which was artistically banked in Southern Smilax.

The bride was more than beautiful on this occasion in an exquisite creation of yellow brocade satin, with pearl trimmings. The Groom wore the conventional black.

Preceding the wedding ceremony, Roy Jennings a brother of the bride impressively sang that beautiful selection, "All That I Ask is Love."

After which Miss Louise Wilson played Mendelssohn's Wedding March, the bridal party descending the stairway through the reception Hall and into the dining room where they stood immediately under the arch erected over the altar. The out of town guests present were Jesse Harris of Franklin, Ky., a brother of the Groom. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Morgan, of Providence, a sister of the bride, Everett and Roy Jennings, of Chicago, and Miss Anne Wallace, of Providence.

Only the immediate and most intimate friends of the members of the Blue Stocking, of which she was one of their most valued members, Rev. W. C. Loyd, Little Miss Maud Mason Jennings and James Morgan, niece & nephew of the bride were present.
